Faculty of Medicine

The Faculty of Medicine at the University of Zurich invites applications for the following position (starting January 1, 2020)

Assistant Professorship in Implementation Science in Nursing Care (non tenure track)

The position is for six years and hosted academically at the Institute for Implementation Science at the University of Zurich and clinically at the University Hospital Zurich.

The future holder of the position is required to have completed a study in nursing science or health sciences with a doctorate and habilitation (or equivalent). Further prerequisites are: Experience in applied research (quantitative and mixed method expertise), clinical nursing experience in a field of integrated care, experience in teaching at a university and in inter-professional collaboration.

It is expected that he or she will already have an independent, internationally visible research activity in this area and a clear agenda for the further development of this research area. This should already have been proven by competitively acquired funding and successfully implemented research projects. It is also important to be prepared to take on work in student teaching and the further development of corresponding curricula. As a young, dynamic person, interprofessional collaboration, active involvement in a team and a high level of motivation to support young researchers should be given.

Advanced spoken level of the German language would be of advantage to facilitate communication with partners outside of academia.

The University of Zurich and the University Hospital Zurich are equal opportunity employers. The Faculty of Medicine implements specific measures in the selection process to increase the proportion of women with a faculty position.
