Brief Description

The EoE Foundation supports research and educational projects in the field of eosinophilic gastrointestinal diseases (EGID).

Research Projects

The EoE Foundation awards financial support for research and educational projects in the field of eosinophilic gastrointestinal diseases (EGID), particularly eosinophilic esophagitis (EoE), several times per year. Research projects must be conducted in Switzerland by members of a Swiss university or research institution holding an MD or PhD degree (issued by a Swiss university or equivalent). Supported proposals include clinical, translational and/or basic science projects. The EoE Foundation accepts applications for funding over one year up to a maximum amount of CHF 60'000.- If the project exceeds this one-year period, please enclose information about the funding of the remaining timeframe. Granted money can be used for salaries (own PI salary or salary for research staff such as postdoc, technician, study nurse or PhD/MD students) and research disposables/material. After the funding period, the final paper (if already published) or a progress report should be sent to the Foundation office.

Communication

Decisions are made within 2-3 months after the submission deadlines and will be communicated directly to the applicants by e-mail.

Deadlines for Application: 1. April and 1. October
